Welcome to Arlington Coaching

Your support starts here - with clear rules, direct communication, and a defined path forward.

Dear _____,

Thank you for choosing Arlington Coaching. From this point forward, our role is to help coordinate your program, keep communication organized, and connect you with attorney support when legal representation is part of your file.

Three important rules

- Do not speak directly with creditors or debt collectors regarding enrolled accounts. Send any communications you receive from creditors or debt collectors directly to Arlington Coaching.
- Do not make payments or enter new payment arrangements on enrolled accounts unless you are specifically instructed to do so in writing by the attorney handling your matter.
- Forward letters, emails, text messages, collection notices, and legal documents you receive about enrolled accounts to Arlington Coaching promptly. Do not respond on your own.

Attorney support

When attorney involvement is part of your program, Arlington Coaching may refer or connect you to a licensed attorney. The attorney or law firm may vary by file and is not identified in this packet. Any attorney-client engagement, legal advice, or power-of-attorney document will come from the licensed attorney handling your matter.

Stay in contact with us

If you are unsure what to do, contact Arlington Coaching before speaking with a creditor or responding to a notice. Keeping communications in one place helps us and any attorney involved understand what is happening with your enrolled accounts.

Your program agreement

Review the responsibilities below. One signature confirms your acknowledgment of this packet.

Your responsibilities

Enrolled accounts

Do not contact, negotiate with, or make payments to creditors or collectors on enrolled accounts unless specifically instructed in writing.

Forward communications

Send us creditor letters, emails, texts, collection notices, and legal documents as soon as you receive them. Do not respond on your own.

Accurate information

Provide complete and accurate account information and let us know promptly if your address, contact information, or circumstances change.

Questions

Contact Arlington Coaching when you are unsure what to do. Our goal is to keep the program organized and prevent conflicting communications.

Our role & attorney support

Program coordination

Arlington Coaching coordinates program communications, tracks documents you send us, and helps route information connected to enrolled accounts.

Attorney referral / representation

When applicable, we may connect you with a licensed attorney to assist with debt-related legal matters and creditor communications. This packet does not identify a specific attorney or law firm.

Legal documents

Any attorney engagement agreement, legal advice, or power-of-attorney authorization will be provided separately by the licensed attorney handling your matter.

Recorded onboarding calls

Verification or onboarding calls may be recorded for quality assurance, compliance, documentation, and support related to your program. Recordings are not used for marketing.

Refunds

If you cancel within 60 days of a charge, you may request a full refund by emailing info@arlingtoncoaching.com.

What you can expect from us

The same core protections and communication standards that guide your program from day one.

1

Respect

You will be treated with courtesy, dignity, and clear communication throughout the program.

2

Clear communication

We will explain what information we need, what the next step is, and where your documents should be sent.

3

Protection from conflicting contact

You should not handle enrolled-creditor communications on your own. Forward those contacts to us, and when attorney representation applies, creditor communications can be routed through the attorney handling your matter.

4

Attorney support when applicable

Your program may include referral or connection to a licensed attorney for debt-related legal representation. The specific attorney or firm is assigned separately and is not named in this packet.

5

Support

You can contact Arlington Coaching with questions about your program, documents, or communications you receive.

6

Confidentiality

Your information is used to administer your program, support your file, and share relevant information with professionals involved in your matter as appropriate.

Important reminder

Do not contact creditors or debt collectors about enrolled accounts on your own. Send communications to Arlington Coaching and follow any written instructions provided by the licensed attorney handling your matter.
